

BUILDING TO BE DEDICATED THIS MORNING

Ceremonies to Be Held at Forest Products Laboratories

LUNCHEON AT NOON

Hon. J. A. Robb Lays Corner Stone of New Building

That the erection of the new Forest Products Laboratories Building will be instrumental in the development of many new ideas conducive to the improvement of the industry, is the opinion confidently expressed by Edward Beck, Secretary of the Canadian Pulp and Paper Association. The corner stone of the building is being laid this morning by Hon. J. A. Robb, M.P., thus bringing the new building for the first time into public view. The old building which has been torn down, was a familiar landmark, and the modern one with up-to-date equipment will provide ample facilities for research work.

The new building is being erected from the proceeds of an issue of bonds taken up by the members of the Canadian Pulp and Paper Association. It is announced that the total cost of the building, including equipment, will most likely exceed the quarter million mark. The bond issue will, in addition, provide for an endowment of $100,000 to McGill University to provide in part for the building's upkeep and maintenance. The building will eventually become the property of McGill University.

Many problems in the pulp and paper industry which are at present outstanding will be treated with the facilities which will be provided by the new building and its equipment. Research will be carried on under the direction of the department of Industrial and Cellulose Chemistry at McGill, and the Paper and Pulp Division of the Forest Products Laboratories. The Chair of the Department of Industrial and Cellulose Chemistry at McGill was established two years ago by the benefice of the late Mrs. E. B. Eddy, of Hull, Que. The present occupant of the Chair is Prof. Harold Hibbert, D.Sc., Ph.D. It is hoped that in this way a great many of the problems which present themselves to those engaged in the pulp and paper industry will be able to be studied with success.

Many of the problems deal with reduction in cost, the principal method of reducing the expenditure being the discovery of uses for by-products which are now going to waste. In sulphite liquor, for example, for which there is at present no use, there are possibilities of many by-products. It is stated that the recovery of sulphur alone would be worth two millions a year to the industry. Utilisation of woods which are at present regarded as useless for the pulp industry, such as jack and lodge pole pine, would mean a tremendous increase in the natural resources of the industry, and yet it presents merely a chemical problem which may be solved in the near future, once suitable facilities are provided.

The dedication ceremonies of the new building, including the laying of the corner stone, take place today, and are significant not only to those directly interested in the industry, but to all who have an intelligent regard for the development of the natural resources (Continued on page four)

SOPHS ELECT CLASS OFFICERS

Arrangements Made for Push-ball Contests

Election of officers and arrangements for the Freshman-sophomore push-ball contest, were the main items of business before the meeting of Arts 70 at noon yesterday.

The mass push-ball contest between the two classes takes place Friday morning at 10:30 on the Campus, when it is expected that some 500 students will mix it to their hearts' content. A second contest, between twenty picked sophomores and a like number of freshmen, will be held between halves at the Queens-McGill game at the Stadium on Saturday. The officers for the Arts sophomore class elected yesterday for the year are:

President, Bob McDonald; Vice-Pres., Allan Calder; Secretary, Jerry Halpenny; Treasurer, Ken Norris.

Rooters' Practice Today at Stadium, 4.30

Many Rooters Expected at Stadium

Cheer Leader Fred Urquhart expects a full attendance at the Rooters' Practice today, at 4.30, at the Stadium. The freshmen, who have had such uncanny enjoyment out of giving the McGill yell, will have a real opportunity to use their lungs to the full. Full details of the parade before the game on Saturday will be given out.

Fred guarantees that the vocal exertions will not interfere with the Jazz Tea. The practice is to be over before the tea starts.

MANY ADDITIONS TO REDPATH LIBRARY

Annual Report Submitted to the Corporation

SUCCESSFUL YEAR

Memorial Room for C. H. Gould Suggested in Next Library Extension

The McGill library had a successful year, according to the annual report submitted to the Corporation by the secretary, G. R. Lomer, at a meeting held yesterday. Fifteen students registered for the Summer Library Course, all of whom completed the course. It is planned to hold the school again next summer.

Professor G. W. Latham, Dr. W. G. M. Byers, Miss Ethel Hurlbutt, and Dr. Francis McLellan were re-elected as members for a term of three years. Professor G. S. Whitby replaces Dr. R. F. Rutan, representing the faculty of Graduate Studies and Research, and Dr. A. L. Walsh is the new representative from the Faculty of Dentistry, replacing Dean Thornton. A resolution regarding the death of Mr. C. J. Fleet, K.C., for over thirty years a member of the library committee, was inscribed in the minutes.

Miss Joan M. V. Foster, M.A., was appointed Library Assistant at the Royal Victoria College Library. At the end of the last session the greatest attendance in one morning reached 108. During the summer, the library was thoroughly checked and put in order. The co-operation of the Undergraduate Library Committee was found to be a welcome assistance in observing library regulations.

During the summer 2,775 volumes were added to the Gest Chinese Research Library, bringing the total up to 25,465, of which 270 are Ming editions, thus making this library the richest on the continent for that period. During the summer, the room was completely furnished by the donor, Mr. Shumung T. Liu resigned on October 24th, and is being replaced by Mr. W. T. Hu.

Miss Mary Duncan Carter has been appointed Assistant Professor of the McGill University Library and Miss Margaret Herdman, Instructor. There is a registration of twenty-one students, who come from six provinces, and nine of whom hold a bachelor's degree.

During the summer, an exhibit was held of the complete contents of the Feather Book, which has been taken apart for exhibition and for mounting. An exhibit of children's book is being published in connection with the Library School and with the co-operation of the publishers from November 1st until Christmas.

The Library reading room has been rearranged in order to provide greater facilities for the Loan Desk and for the Periodical Room; the four rooms in the basement have been rearranged for the use of the Library School. This has involved storing a large number of duplicates and uncatalogued material in the rear of 34 McTavish Street, and storing the University Publications in Room 61 in the Arts Building.

As most of the Canadian historical manuscripts have now been copied by photostat, the Library Committee approves the loan of these copies when necessary for legitimate study of publication.

The committee was in favor of some memorial to Mr. C. H. Gould, for twenty-six years Librarian of the University, and suggested that a room be provided as a suitable memorial in the next extension of the building. The matter was referred to the principal.

SOCIETY TO MEET

There will be a meeting at 8, tonight in the McGill Conservatorium of Music. All who were out at the last meeting and all newcomers who are interested in the forthcoming production of Iolanthe please attend.

EDUCATIONAL ADVANCEMENT IS GRATIFYING

Prof. Hatcher Thinks Newfoundland Students Well Prepared for College

HONORARY PRESIDENT

Dr. C. T. Crowdy Elected to Office Replacing Dr. I. M. Thompson

A large gathering of students from the 'Oldest Colony' attended the first of this season's meetings of the Newfoundland Club at Strathcona Hall last night.

President T. J. Quinton opened the meeting by welcoming the old and new members. He then expressed the Club's regret that the Hon. President, Dr. I. M. Thompson, would no longer be associated with the Club, because of his having been appointed to an important post in the University of California. Dr. Thompson always evidenced great interest in the Club's activities and will be greatly missed. Dr. C. T. Crowdy was, however, unanimously elected to fill the vacancy caused by Dr. Thompson's retirement, and everybody is well satisfied that the destinies of the Newfoundland Club will be well directed under him.

The President then introduced Dr. Hatcher, the speaker of the evening.

Dr. Hatcher is himself a Newfoundland and regaled the gathering for about a half an hour with amusing anecdotes, which were well enjoyed by his audience because most of those present were familiar with the background of his stories. He extended a hearty welcome to the new students and congratulated them on whatever chain of circumstances led them to choose McGill for their Alma Mater, and assured them of his sympathetic interest in their careers. Making reference to educational conditions in Newfoundland he expressed that opinion that we compared favourably with Canada in their respect, and considered the firm establishment of the Newfoundland Memorial College a long stride in a forward direction. This college is now receiving definite recognition for work done there by all the great universities of Canada, which is a great encouragement to those who have worked so long and enthusiastically for this. He spoke of the connection there must be between Newfoundland and the new chair that is being introduced to McGill University, in the Forests Products Laboratory, since Newfoundland is such a large manufacturer of forests products.

Concluding, he urged the Club to continue to be the live factor it is in the life of Newfoundland students at McGill, and furthermore to continue to be the connecting link it is between educational Newfoundland and this (Continued from Page Four)

CHORAL SOCIETY BEGINS BIG YEAR

Rehearsals for Production of Iolanthe Begin Tonight

The McGill Operatic and Choral Society will meet tonight at 8 in the McGill Conservatorium of Music, 323 Sherbrooke Street. The rehearsal of the chorus parts for the forthcoming production of Iolanthe will take place under the direction of Mr. Clapperton, who while in England last summer has been studying the traditions and stage-work of the operetta.

Iolanthe is a Gilbert and Sullivan comic opera. The plot centres about the Lord Chancellor who has married a fairy. Their daughter, Iolanthe, is therefore half fairy and half mortal. Her mother disappears, and returns later as young as when she left. Meanwhile the Chancellor has aged as is the wont with mortals. It is said that this opera was the result of trouble with his leading ladies which prompted Gilbert to create a plot in which no leading lady was necessary. Accordingly Iolanthe is an opera which requires less individual stardom than any other, and more is left to the choruses of fairies and court gentlemen. This will necessitate a good turn out of singers who need no special gifts aside from the ability to carry a tune with something of a voice.

Those who attended the last meeting were thoroughly impressed with the lyrical qualities of Iolanthe. The music is comparatively simple so that with a reasonable amount of rehearsing a

Moving Pictures Will Illustrate Medical Studies

Medical moving pictures have become a fact and definite progress in the making of such a series by the American College of Surgeons has been recorded. Dr. W. W. Chipman, a past president of the association, who has just returned from Detroit, reports.

According to Dr. Chipman, one or two of the pictures will be ready for exhibition before the end of the year. "The moving picture was recognized to be of growing importance in educational work both for the professional and lay elements," Dr. Chipman declared, pointing out that the project was formulated at the convention held here last October.

The pictures will be available at a normal cost for any university or hospital, and their accuracy is vouched for by many noted authorities. No picture will be released until it has been passed by a special committee of the college.

OFFICERS ELECTED BY PLAYERS CLUB

Wainman Succeeds Denny as President for This Year

It was with great regret that the Players' Club of McGill accepted the resignations of its former president and vice-president, D. Denny and R. S. Eyo respectively last night, during the Club's first meeting of this year. Denny, whose excellent work is well remembered by all who saw him play the difficult role of Ferdinand de Lesseps in "Loyalties" by John Galsworthy, explained that he would be away for the college year, doing research work in mining engineering in Western Ontario.

C. G. C. Wainman, the Club's former vice-president was elected by acclamation as the new president, G. Severs was elected vice-president, while H. J. Erdich was elected secretary-treasurer. The appointment of a Business Manager will take place as soon as the Club starts its season's programme. This completed the list of governing officers for the ensuing year.

It was suggested at the meeting that the Club should present two or three one act plays prior to their regular three act play which is generally produced in the beginning of March.

The Club was completely reorganized in February of '25 and since then it has shown a remarkable improvement. Most of last year's players are back with the exception of Denny and Eyo, thus giving the Club some well trained material to commence work with.

The president expressly invited all those interested in amateur dramatics to be present at the next meeting of the Club which takes place next Monday afternoon at 5.15 in the Music Room of the McGill Union.

The attendance at the meeting was quite large, exceeding all expectations and on the whole the gathering was very successful. The next meeting was set for Monday, Oct. 17th.

very competent chorus will tread the boards with self-confidence. This year stage-work will commence earlier than usual and the task of singing will be lightened by greater variety of action. With the record attendances that are expected and the increasing interest shown by the students, the Operatic and Choral Society are looking forward to a banner year.

FACULTY OF LAW TO HAVE RUGBY TEAM THIS YEAR

That the Faculty of Law will enter a football team in the Inter-university, and that the players will be numbered from 1,000 upward. This is unconfirmed. The person from whom this rumor emanates suggests that the style of uniform is in keeping with the best traditions of the legal faculty.

Available, there are: Gammell, Nairn, Manley, Webster, Blumenstein, P. Smith, Hansard, Davidson, Casey, Handfield, White and Holt. A further rumor is being circulated to the effect that the official uniform of this team will consist of sweaters resembling in a close degree those worn by inmates faculty League is the gist of information received last night by the Daily from unofficial, but very authoritative sources.

A survey of the men in this faculty reveals the fact that the nucleus of a very good team is present. To mention names of those

REGISTRATION FIGURES ARE ALMOST SAME

Decrease of Six Shown From Last Year

SMALL FROSH CLASS

Science Freshmen are Fewer Due to Raised Standards

The registration figures issued after the meeting of the Corporation of McGill University yesterday show no startling differences when compared with those of last year. Increases shown in several departments are offset by corresponding decreases in others. The total enrollment of the University this year is 2766 students, as compared with 2772 colleagues in attendance the year before. The decrease of six students is negligible; for all practical purposes the number remains the same.

The results of several changes in entrance requirements, etc., is noticeable in some of the courses. The number of freshmen in Science, for instance, has been reduced from 134 new students last year to the present number of 79, this decrease of 55 being due to the fact that a year in the Faculty of Arts or Senior Matriculation is now necessary for entrance. Arts freshmen have increased in numbers from 393 students last year to 370 at the present time. The total registration in Arts of 1079 students represents an increase over last year of 38. The figures for the Department of Commerce remain the same as last year, namely 212 students. The number of budding lawyers has been reduced from 65 last year to 61 this year, 30 of them entering their first year. Most of these students are English speaking. The faculty of Medicine now consists of 470 students, 20 less than last year, the decrease being due to the raising of the standards for entrance three years ago, resulting in a smaller registration.

There are only 36 students registered in Dentistry compared with 66 last year, the decrease in this case also being due to a change in the standards for entrance made by the Dental Association of the Province of Quebec. The entrance requirements for this Faculty at McGill are two years of Arts. In most of the American colleges one year only is necessary, while in several other colleges only Junior Matriculation is required.

The figures for the Faculty of Music show an enrollment of 188 students of whom 154 are women and 34 men, there being a slight decrease from last year's figures. This is due to the fact that the Faculty has established (Continued on page four)

UNIVERSITY BAND SHOWING UP WELL

Will Make Appearance at Queen's Game

Present indications seem to confirm the opinion that the McGill band this year is the biggest and best that the University has ever known. It has reached a membership of over thirty, and it is showing up excellently in practice. Its excellent performance thus far is being viewed with extreme optimism by all concerned.

The coming Saturday the band will lead all rooters up to the Queen's McGill game, from the Roddick gates at the Sherbrooke St. entrance to the Molson's Stadium. Arrangements are being made to reserve an ample number of seats to accommodate all the rooters, so that all may attend the parade without any fear of losing their seats.

This year, the repertoire of the band will consist of new marches, in addition to the ever-popular old favorites. It is considered by many a good omen that a championship team and a championship band will both be making their appearance at the same time. In fact this is the first time this year that both are appearing together at home. Now that the team is assured of the support of a capable band, all that is needed is the vocal support of thundering thousands of rooters to cheer the team to victory in their annual at home battle with the tricolored supporters of the Queen's banner.

Freddie Gross Entertains at Tea in Union

Jazz teas, ever popular with the student body of McGill, are here once more. The first of these glorious events will be held in the Union cafeteria this afternoon at five o'clock, much to the joy of knowing upperclassmen. Fred W. Gross and his syncopators will strut their stuff in a peppy manner, as all who have heard them will testify.

For the benefit of the verdant freshmen, it may be stated that these teas are not attended by intriguing maidens nor in fact, by any maidens. There is no dancing, as the whole affair is a stag party. Incidentally everyone will be able to attend both the rooters' practice and the tea.

McGILL TO RECEIVE RARE OSLER WORKS

Valuable Sir William Osler Collection from Oxford

MEDICAL LIBRARY

Other Donations to Faculty Include Works, Prints and Paintings

The well-known Osler Medical Library is coming to McGill from Oxford in the near future, it was stated by the Faculty of Medicine yesterday. Dr. Francois, who is the librarian of the works, will take charge in placing the collection in its special department in the Medical Building.

Sir William Osler made a specialty of collecting rare medical books, and consequently, this collection has considerable historical value. Its value also as a record of research in medicine makes possible much knowledge of medical works.

In the room of the library assigned to these works will be placed a relief of Sir William Osler, now being finished by Vernon.

A painting of the late Professor J. G. Adams, by William Penn, of Liverpool, England, is being presented to McGill by some of his intimate friends. It will be placed in the assembly hall of the medical building.

Dr. Adams, one time professor of pathology at McGill, left the University to take part in war activities. He was later named Chancellor of the University of Liverpool, which position he held until his death.

Dr. C. Wood a short while ago made a valuable presentation of illustrated works to the medical library. This collection deals with the medical practices of the East.

Dr. R. W. Powell, Dr. F. J. Shepherd and the Royal Society of Medicine, London, have presented valuable prints to the Faculty of Medicine.

ANNUAL BOARD HELD MEETING

Urge all Faculties to Elect Representatives Immediately

The first meeting of the Annual Board was held in the Union yesterday afternoon. Little business was transacted as the faculties of Medicine, Law, Dentistry and Macdonald College sent no representations.

Those present stated that it was the wish of the Board to publish the Annual as soon as possible this year, and in order that an early start may be made, it is necessary that all representatives be elected immediately, and attend the next meeting of the Board, on Monday afternoon at 5 o'clock.

ABOLITION OF CREEDS URGED IN LECTURE

Dr. Curry Spoke to Interested Group Yesterday

NEW RENAISSANCE

Back to the Fundamental Teachings of Christ, is Ideal

The coming of a "New Spiritual Renaissance" was the main topic of Dr. Curry's invigorating address to S.C.A. students yesterday evening, that the religion of today is not the simple teaching of Christ but numerous complex interpretations by great religious thinkers was his contention. These thinkers despite their great learning and intellect have, slowly but surely, broken Christianity up into many diverse sects, each of which firmly believes in the particularly interpretation of its founder. Such men were Martin Luther, John Knox and Calvin. While not attaching in any way the Lutherians, Presbyterians or Calvinists Dr. Curry emphasized the need of distrusting any fixed set of rules or dogmas. "Beware of all footnotes! These but represent the opinions of one man. Form your own opinions. If you are not qualified to do so, equip yourself, a university training should be a great advantage in this respect."

Religion as preached by Christ is Dr. Curry's ideal, and he does not care how heretical his views may seem to any particular religious group. It is adherence to personal opinions and loyalty to sectal creed rather than to Christ's teachings that he attacks.

"The Spiritual Renaissance" will come from groups of impartial thinkers, young people, unbiased by tradition, educated people, such as were then sitting in front of him. When the doctor spoke of this religious revival his voice assumed a new tone, his eyes glinted with a new light, as a man gazing at a great ideal, and his enthusiasm flowed through his audience, who regarded him with something more than the thoughtful silence maintained during the great part of his lecture.

To show how greatly we had deviated from the gospel of Christ Dr. Curry referred his listeners to the Sermon on the Mount as related by St. Matthew. Christ's conception of those who were "blessed" or rather, fortunate is in direct opposition to modern theories. Christ's ideals were based upon spiritual and not physical attributes. "Blessed are they that mourn," said he. That is they who sigh for the endless confusion and stupidity of life. "Blessed are they who have wealth" say modern philosophers. However these things have always been, and it was the inability of the Jews to grasp a spiritual code of ethics that led to His death.

As Christ realized the omnipotence of the spirit so did he realize the domination of mind over matter. All physical actions must have their roots in some mental activity. For instance if one would stop murder or adultery, one should not attempt to do so by restriction, but by conquering anger or desire when they arose in the mind. This is but one of Christ's essential teachings which we neglect to practice today.

CHEMISTRY COLLOQUIA STARTED

K. H. Butler Spoke on Hydrogen Peroxide

The first Chemistry Colloquium of the year was held at 5 o'clock yesterday, the subject being "Hydrogen Peroxide." Mr. H. K. Butler gave the introductory talk.

He mentioned various experiments which had been made in previous years on the fractionation of the compound by Hahn and by Walton, and went on to illustrate some of the work done by himself and Mr. Maass. These later experiments, which dealt considerably with the disulphide, were made more clean by the use of slides which showed the arrangement of the apparatus used and graphs of the results obtained. Mr. Butler then compared the various properties of H<sub>2</sub>O<sub>2</sub> with those of H<sub>2</sub>O and other substances. At the conclusion of his speech, various questions were asked him, concerning difficult or obscure points in his experiments, most of which he answered satisfactorily. The Colloquium then adjourned.

RHODES SCHOLARSHIP

THERE are thousands of scholarships awarded by benevolent gentlemen and progressive educational boards, in every known quarter of the globe, every year. One series of scholarships stands pre-eminent, however, is known by almost everybody, and is taken as a standard by which other scholarships are set—the series of Rhodes scholarships.

The Rhodes scholarships were founded by an Englishman who had two great dreams. One of these—the Cape to Cairo all-British railway—has yet to be realized. The other has earned for him immortality.

There are rules concerning the Rhodes scholarship. These rules are followed religiously or loosely according to the selection board. Rhodes intended that the best men—the men who were likely to do the best work for their country and the world in the future—were to be selected. With this in view he took into account personality, popularity and power as well as pure scholarship and moulded his rules accordingly. But all selection committees know just the sort of men Rhodes wished to confer his scholarships on.

Students from the far corners of the world seek the cloisters of Oxford, taking advantage of Rhodes' beneficence. They go back to where they came from, broadening in outlook, enriched by knowledge, and admirably fitted for world-building.

Cambridge feels a bit jealous because Oxford secures so many of the world's best scholars. It wouldn't matter if these students kept to seeking the cloisters of Oxford, but they also seek the athletic fields and the rowing equipment. Many a time Rhodes scholars have won athletic victories for Oxford against Cambridge.

But be they noted athletes or merely well-conditioned, scholastic prodigies or merely hard-working competent heads, they all have the "stuff" in them which stamps them as potential leaders of men. May the high standard of the Rhodes scholarship ever be maintained!

MISS HURLBATT'S WELCOME SPEECH

IN her welcoming address to R.V.C. freshmen Miss Hurlbatt showed that students held a very advantageous position, if they were true students. They should be "the most rational of beings," she said. They are rational largely because they are accurate in thought and deed.

To be adventurous but not reckless is good advice, and badly needed on this continent. No true student becomes reckless if accurate.

They are the most independent because study teaches them not to be satisfied with existence, but to yearn for change towards the ideal.

Another great art that only a few people, and those few students, can learn, is that of holding to one's own opinions without being intolerant of others. Convictions will no doubt come to students, and any who have taken philosophy will realize the foolishness of clinging dogmatically to any theory.

A REAL INITIATION

ALL this good fun and sportive raffishery may be dubbed initiation, but it is not worthy of the term. Judging by old reports, freshmen were "properly" initiated in the days gone by when sophomores invented nerve-wracking tortures which injured many young fellows for life, and even resulted in death now and then. It is difficult to realize that people of fifty to a hundred years ago countenanced such brutality.

The real initiation is carried on during examination time. The after-effects are very rarely beneficial, and sometimes very hurtful.

This is really an initiation into a new form of study, and a new responsibility. It may seem brutal too. No quarter is shown at examination time. A student's paper is often marked mechanically, and the result alone determines his standing or lack of standing.

The method is not so brutal, though, when one looks into it. Like present-day initiation, it holds no terror for the student who is willing to co-operate and stick by the rules. Those who make light of their responsibility are initiated, usually very drastically.

CURRENT COMMENTS

THE FASHION IN TICKETS

The season ticket for rugby games has become very popular, as record-breaking sales prove. Another section of the grandstand has been reserved for season ticket holders.

If this keeps up, outsiders will have to buy tickets for every game in order to procure a seat for any one—unless they can get rooster tickets, disguise as university students, and buy a packet of meloids to guard against sore throat.

A MOVIE COURSE

In explaining the institution of a course in "movie technology" at the University of Southern California, Dr. K. T. Waugh, head of the department of liberal arts, mentions the enormous size of the moving picture industry.

The chewing gum industry is also large. The real question is, can the movies be brought up to the level of university culture?

The Americans have certainly introduced some real art into their moving pictures, in spite of the fact that they are catering, in so large a measure to the "department store" girl who merely wants to see a strong, immaculately-attired hero go through fire, water and electricity to win his loved one.

The enormous scope for art in the moving picture industry is indisputed. Will the producers find that the public is willing to pay for high-class art work? Or does sloppy romance still lead the field?

THE PLAYERS' CLUB

We note with pleasure that the Players' Club is prosperous, benefitting by a large membership and capable talent.

The policy of this club has always been good, previous performances have been highly entertaining. The executives have shown the faculty of choosing plays that are masterpieces of drama without being complicated or heavy, and therefore extraordinarily difficult to produce.

We look forward with pleasurable anticipation to the first performance this year, which will consist of one-act plays. These will afford good practice for club members, who will engage in a more ambitious under taking later on.

The Players' Club deserves every success, and they have every chance to be successful.

EDITORIAL CRACKERS

A new course is given about infants of pre-school age, in the Nursery School. Our loyal sophomores unanimously ask why a course is not given in this department, on freshmen study.

News item in local paper: "Mexican Editor is Pardoned." So Mexico is more civilized than us in some ways.

Our new chef says he can prepare any course on request providing he is given nine minutes. We shall ask him for chicken kidneys and sweet potatoes.

"What is here?" asks a celebrated visitor to the university. We'll bite. But we'll ask him a more radical one. "Why is a mouse when it spins?"

The freshmen think Wright is quite tall enough without being extended by McLeod.

THE MCGILLIAD

Ave Atque Vale

Farewell, a long farewell to all my greatness. (Henry VIII)
 All hail that would be king hereafter. (Macbeth)

That they are gone is now beyond a doubt. Many have passed; and many have passed out.

Shall we weep threnodies in lieu of fare-you-wells, and shall our adieu be Jeremiah's? Rather in songs of rejoicing will we commemorate those who were but are no more; we shall elevate the graduate to the glory of convocation fustian and we shall drop him in a limbo over which we shall erect a monument inscribed with epithaphan epigram.

Flaunting a sheepskin symbol of a mystical attribute and suffering from a degree which is his first, the graduate meditates his past, considers an academic nirvana interrupted by rugby-yows, recalls as in a sweet dream the self-sufficiency of his erstwhile-relegated sophistication, and realizes by these presents that he is a B.A. (h). He retrospects; he stares at a void. He introspects; a void stares at him. Ergo he proceeds to take his M.A.

The co-ed, too, having served her sentence of four years of self-imposed collegiate incarceration, she discovers inconclusively that she is still unwedded, and reflects, significantly, "In vain is the labour and the strife". She therefore undertakes social warfare; most amiably and sociably we bid her farewell.

Gone also has the radical; but he precedent has confirmed, goes on forever. His name is legion and his head is hydra. We will wave him farewell but he no doubt will regard it as an invitation to an hand-shake. We asseverate, therefore, farewell, farewell, and God be with you.....

Only the devotees of football regard the bygone with the affluence of success; their egos apotheosized; their names appended to a classical dictionary; their victories annexed to the realm of mythology, they already see themselves incorporated in an epic the rhythm of whose feet accords with the Homeric rapidity of a football Farewell then, and farewell.

Greetings.. We hail with a head-shake the multitude of metamorphoses of man.... freshmen growing green upon their cranial and waste land within.... freshmen illustrating most succinctly the philosopher's definition of a humane: the chicken plucked.... How did Lucifer fall? He slipped upon a new banana peel..

The moon.... Lot us I've, my Lesbia, let us love; And all the thoughts of old age let us deem

As thoughtless, as not worth another thought.... The suns may set, the suns may rise again;

For us whence once the flame has flickered out. The night is long, is long and passionless....

A thousand kisses gave me and a hundred. Another thousand and another hundred.

A hundred more, and more, a thousand more.. Thus love in kisses let us count our millions

And let us thus confuse the reckoning Of all the rubies glowing on our lips So none may envy us and we my Love Will surely envy none.

The Editor, McGill Daily.

Dear Sirs: Since you have been thoughtless enough to allow sophomores to write up the news concerning the encounters between Freshmen and sophomores, I feel it my duty to correct some mistruths which have been published.

First of all, the rebellion of the freshmen was due to the treatment which they received at the hands of the sophs. The fact that one freshman was surrounded by throngs of sophomores and maltreated at one time was completely forgotten, but when one sophomore (not a "hone sophomore" as was reported) was gently handled by some freshmen (he admits it himself) it was as if a great crime had been committed.

Then the "most outrageous battle" which the Freshmen were supposed to have started at 1 o'clock Tuesday, was merely a retaliation. Lured out of Moyses Hall by a lie (a strong word but most fitting for this occasion), the majority of Freshmen escaped the trap set and left the hall by a side door. Was it any wonder that they rose in indignation at the underhand tactics employed by the Sophomores?

Yours for justice in future J. M.

The Editor, McGill Daily.

Montreal, Oct. 12th, 1927.
 Dear Sir:—While acknowledging my debt for space already granted, may I ask the further favour of your editorial forbearance on this occasion. In the correspondence column of Wednesday, a reply from G. B. is printed to my letter of Oct. 10 in Tuesday's Daily. I heartily agree with the gentleman in desiring our mutual enlightenment. From a perusal of his letter, I am convinced that my letter, in causing him to retreat somewhat from his original stand of general negation, has done some good in the matter of enlightenment. He has apparently seen the error of his ways and come nearer to the straight and narrow path, but I feel obliged to correct a few misapprehensions which still seem to exist.

I am, like G. B., aware that there are many persons who entertain the vision of aeroplanes as common as motors, I claim that "that many" may be the fool multitude, that choose by show." Certainly, there are few who have seriously considered the matter, who would make such an assertion. I consider that Tennyson's dream of "the nations' airy navies" came only too true in the late War, and may do so again.

The fact that few always are paying their own way is not astonishing, when we consider that aviation is now, as the railway was sixty years ago, in its infancy, and that other means of transportation are so highly developed. The opportunities for aerial development may be reduced to two in number. The first is mail service, which already is well organized on a paying basis. The second is in the case where a journey by the ordinary means of transportation would take more than a single night, as in the case of the London-Paris route. Long distance travel is at present commercially infeasible by aeroplane but the dirigible airship, helium filled is ideal for the purpose. Two airships of five million cubic feet capacity, of steel and duralumin construction, will be placed in operation next year on Empire routes.

As an example of a country that has faith in air development, I may cite the case of Germany, which since the War has made great strides in commercial aviation. Aeroplane fares between the principal German cities are the same as first class railway fares.

To clear the ground thoroughly may I state my contention briefly. It is this: that aerial transport has come to stay, that it has a great future ahead of it, and that its function is not to supplant but to supplement existing means of transportation. In closing I would like to state that of G. B., in his original article had expressed the same views as in his letter, I would have had little objection to offer. If the gentleman has not, as he hoped, enlightened me, he has at least, not wearied.

Yours truly,

The Editor, McGill Daily.

Dear Sir, Not so many years ago, the newcomers to this great University were asked (and not politely at that) to tell the world that they were "Freshmen green as grass." But today it is a difficult task to tell them it as I feel sure the Sophomore class now realize.

This new class, having been picked and inspected with the greatest of care, came to this college in quest of that elusive something known as "an education and somehow they feel that the desire of their upperclassmen to distinguish them as fresh arrivals should not be talented and how successfully are they carrying out this why, the Sophomores have been driven off into remote territory. Even many of the Juniors and Seniors, with their years of experience and means of tackling things, could not aid in conquering these handsome, healthy, hopeful gentlemen.

At last a class has entered these sacred portals of learning who can defy the desires others have to distinguish them and oh, what a tale they can tell of their three great victories in Sophomores land. Come now, ye second year men. Are you laying down arms. It is true many win battles which others should win but we are not in Chicago now besides, why should the old order change, or rather, is it to change with the arrival of this "selected" crowd to this University.

Mind though, the miles and regulations of initiation must be observed. Yours truly "Within the law"

The Editor, McGill Daily.

Dear Sir, We notice with great regret that higher education seems to have gone to the number at the year shows an

Fraternities Are Reviewed

(The Christian Science Monitor)

Much discussion has been indulged in, possibly elsewhere as well as in the United States, regarding the activities of college fraternities and sororities.

It is not strange that a divided opinion exists as to the wisdom or unwisdom of maintaining these organizations as part of college life, and as to the benefits or drawbacks which affiliation in them involves. Circumstances alter cases. This is a self-evident proposition. Thus it is as difficult to make a definite and unyielding rule for the government and routine of family life as it is to prescribe arbitrarily the line of conduct, which should be allowed by undergraduates in the colleges.

There are satisfying indications that in most organizations there exists more generally than in former years, a higher and clearer sense of democracy than is commonly supposed. Those associations quite naturally reflect the basic ideals of the college with which they are identified, and as it is true that the colleges are departing farther and farther from any adherence to a false aristocracy, so student groups that are bound together by the innocuous oath of fraternalism welcome the struggling student who is compelled to work his way through four years of college, just as sincerely as they do the scion of a millionaire.

Under these conditions, wherever they exist, the testimony of those who claim to be able to judge is to the effect that the young man or woman who is obliged to be away from home, while attending college is benefitted by the intimate association which life in a fraternity or sorority compels. Association with seniors or other higher classmates affords what, in many cases, is greatly needed—an opportunity for close introspection. One soon realizes the necessity of seeing himself as others see him. If he is slow in availing himself of the opportunity, the mirror is generously held up for him.

But while all these arguments are attractively presented in the briefs of those who defend all college secret societies, so called, they need not be accepted as conclusive. The record of achievement of the particular organization, always available to those alarming decrease; against a possible 350 last year, there appears to be but 33 this year, judging at least by the size of the R.V.C. undergrad meeting yesterday.

If no one is interested in the business of the college or of the societies, it seems that these institutions are superfluous; in which case the executives are entirely unnecessary and an unorganized undergraduate body is evidently the aim and desire of a very large majority of its members. Therefore we would be radical enough to suggest a mass meeting of all women students to decide whether organized societies are really worth while, or if we should give individualism and un-governed activities a trial. If, for instance, we wish to have a debating team, or some other hitherto organized activity, let everyone debate at once, and the loudest speaker win; this would undoubtedly put a premium on brawn and not brains which may be the best system, after all, and one for which we have the example of our earliest forefathers.

If an organized society appeals to people let them support their executive councils by attendance at meetings which should be of general interest.

who seek the facts, should be studied and given weight. It would not be surprising to learn that many a worthy young man and young woman has been helped in no small measure by the kindly influences of this affiliation.

SECONDS DEFEAT LOYOLA TEAM IN THRILLING GAME

McGill Puts out 7-6 Win After Exciting Tussle

JUNIORS WIN

Whitewash Opponents 5-0; May be Protest in Other

The McGill Intermediate Rugby team scored its first win of the season yesterday at the Stadium, the strong Loyola squad being downed 7-6 in a thrilling battle. A touchdown half-way through the third quarter spelled defeat for the Maroons who were then leading 8-2. At it was, however, they worked like Trojans and Savard's prodigious booting nearly brought his team up on equal terms again, in the hectic fourth quarter.

It is quite possible that Loyola will protest the game due to a supposed infringement of a rule just two minutes before the final whistle blew, which stopped the game for several minutes while officials and players gathered in conference in front of the dug-outs. According to Loyola, the head linesman failed to notify the referee when it was three minutes from time, as is required in the rules. After some argument the referee decided to finish out the rest of the game and abide by the result of the league officials. The head linesman in a statement to the Daily last night said that he had tried to attract the referee's attention but as the latter had been so busy on the field he had not been able to do so.

The McGill men showed a much improved style of playing both on the attack and defence and with a little seasoning they should give a good account of themselves in their remaining fixtures.

The line in particular showed excellent promise and throughout the game they presented a stone-wall defense to the efforts of the Loyola line-plungers. However, the tackling of the wings was at times shaky and the backs were out-kicked and out-run on nearly every occasion by the fleet maroon backfield. This was due in no small part to the sensational work of Jean Savard the Loyola kicking half who repeatedly thrilled the crowd with his 50 and 60 yard kicks. He also combined very smoothly with McAleer in the running back of McGill kicks which were often too short and low.

McGill kicked off with the wind and soon were deep in Loyola territory, where Swaney kicked twice to the dead-line, leaving the score at the end of the quarter McGill 2, Loyola 0.

In the next stanza the situation was reversed and Savard had soon hoisted over three singles to make the score 5-2 in favor of Loyola. McAleer provided the first thrill of the game by racing thirty yards down the left lane and leaving half a dozen would-be tacklers sprawling in his wake.

Loyola took the offensive after the interval but several penalties seriously interfered with their chances of scoring. With the ball at centre field Swaney sent a punt to one of the Loyola backfield trio who promptly dropped it and when the ensuing scramble was sorted out it was a McGill man who held the ball. Dutch Simpson made 8 yards to put the ball on the 15 yard line directly opposite the posts. Robertson called for an on side kick and then Jones grabbed the oval for the deciding score of the game. Simpson failed to convert and the score remained McGill 7, Loyola 3.

The maroon squad launched a furious attack in the last quarter and with the wind at their backs they whittled the McGill margin down to a single point while the redmen strove desperately to retain their lead. Loyola relied chiefly on Savard's booting, and he soon added three points by fine kicking. A fourth was in sight when a McGill wing broke through to block a kick and save a dangerous situation. The game ended with McGill in possession on their 15 yard line.

The line-up of the Intermediate game is as follows:

| LOYOLA      |  | MCGILL                                 |  |

Meanwhile the Juniors kept pace with the seconds by taking their part of the double-header by a 5-0 score. The red men outplayed their opponents in all departments of the game and the ball seldom left Loyola territory.

The winner's line held Loyola safe at all stages while Captain Gordie Reed and McNeill sent over five singles to clinch the game. The latter, a freshman gave an excellent performance in all departments of the game.

TRACK MEN READY FOR BITTER FIGHT

Medicine Will Have Stiff Opposition This Year

The interfaculty track meet to be held next Friday, will from all indications be the most bitterly fought in years. Medicine, the winners last year are again entering a strong team, including Balmer, Blomer, Hanlon and Rahman. Chief opposition, it is expected will come from Arts. The latter faculty has the largest representation of all with fully twenty-five men carrying her colours. Urquhart, Spence, Cameron and MacKay are among the Arts standard bearers.

Commerce is entering what is generally considered the strongest team ever to represent the department. The team consists of but eight men among these are numbered Willie Consiglio, former intercollegiate pole-vault title holder, Baker, Barclay and LeMessurier.

In all 56 entries have been received, but as post entries are being accepted up to the time of the meet, it is expected that the figure will be swelled to record proportions.

All competitors are cautioned by the track managers with regard to physical examinations are of no value. The meet is scheduled to start at 2 P.M. Friday afternoon.

HARRIERS ARE AT WORK

Several Newcomers at Practice; Medicine is Strong

Several new men have been appearing at the regular harrier runs during the last few days, and the prospects of having a well-conditioned team are somewhat brighter. While there have been no official trials as yet, a number of the long distance runners have essayed their speed on the various parts of the course. Men from several American colleges are among the newcomers, and with a little more practice should be in good shape to strengthen the team. At the present time Medicine is the best represented faculty, and unless there are a number of new developments, should have a fair chance of leading the pack in the Inter-Faculty Run on October 29.

It was intimated at the field house last evening that half a dozen of the harrier men would enter in the three mile run on the track tomorrow. This, of course, is more with the intention of giving the runners some competitive experience than with any idea that one of them will win the race.

Runs continue to be held each day from the Stadium starting between four-thirty and five o'clock.

THEOLOGY WILL MEET SCIENCE

Interfaculty Soccer Match Takes Place on Campus

Science and Theology meet on the campus at 4 this afternoon in the second scheduled game of the Inter-faculty soccer league.

Science are last year's champions and are expected to put up a strong bid for this season's honors. They number some excellent forwards among their players in the persons of Gavon Doherty and Brain. This trio are sure to give the theologian goalkeeper all the excitement he wants.

The theology team is one of doubtful quality. They are more or less dark horses, but judging by past years, their team will provide the strongest

TENNIS UPSET AS PACAUD BEAT HOLT

Former triumphed by Scores of 2-6, 9-7, 6-1.

WRIGHT IN FINAL

Will Meet Winner of McInerney-Peters Match—Trials Today

The defeat of F. C. Holt, member of last year's championship intercollegiate team, and the exhibition put up by Jack Wright, defending champion, in his semi-final match against Ned Pacaud, featured play in the University tennis championships yesterday. Holt was beaten by Pacaud at 2-6, 9-7, 6-1, while Wright reached the final by eliminating the latter, 6-2, 6-0.

The Holt-Pacaud match was adjourned the evening before when the score stood at a set all and darkness prevented further play. Holt, the more experienced of the two, had had the best of the early part of the match, but Pacaud steadied in the second set and finally managed to pull it out. This gave him confidence when the two took the courts yesterday afternoon and Holt wilted under a driving forehand and backhand attack, with the result that Pacaud took the set with the loss of only one game.

Wright finished off his quarter-final match against Fin McMartin by taking the first two games to win at 6-2, 7-5; and he then took the courts against Pacaud. The latter put up a splendid exhibition against the Canadian champion although he was only able to win two games. His backhand driving was a treat to watch, and he frequently caught Wright out of position with well placed shots. Wright held command throughout, but Pacaud deserves much credit for his plucky showing.

One other match was played during the day when J. P. McInerney, seeded star, defeated R. Sabourin, a newcomer to McGill, by scores of 6-3, 4-6 and 6-4. McInerney had matters much his own way in the opening set, and he kept up the pace at the beginning of the second, but Sabourin then came to life and began to force matters himself. McInerney went to pieces and the hard-driving French youth took the second set at 6-4. McInerney was all off colour by now, and he was forced to summon to his aid all the tricks he knew before he was able to take the final set and the match.

McInerney will meet C. H. Peters in the semi-finals at twelve o'clock today, and the winner will play Wright in the final at eleven o'clock Friday morning. If the weather is unsatisfactory either today or tomorrow the final will be played on Saturday.

Today several trial matches will be played to decide what men will be given a chance in the eliminations for the team. W. F. McMartin who put up such a good showing against Wright, will play R. Sabourin at three o'clock, while at the same time C. E. Pacaud will meet A. E. Lavery.

The results:

| Quarter-finals                     |                |
|------------------------------------|----------------|
| J. A. Wright beat W. F. McMartin,  | 6-2, 7-5.      |
| C. E. Pacaud beat F. C. Holt, 2-6, | 9-7, 6-1.      |
| J. P. McInerney beat R. Sabourin,  | 6-3, 4-6, 6-4. |

| Semi-final                      |           |

KELLER KNOCKED OUT CHAMPION

McGill Boxer Scored Clean-cut Victory in Feature bout

Don Keller of McGill won the feature bout of the evening at St. Bridget's Club Smoker last night. Keller, who is the former intercollegiate title holder knocked out A. Methot in the third round, after putting it all over his opponent from the very beginning. Keller who has been training under Coach Bert Light for the last three weeks won in the third round on a clean cut knock-out finishing his opponent with a left hook to the jaw. Methot is the 165 pound police champion. Keller was unable to take part in last year's intercollegiate meet owing to the fact that he fractured his hand just a few days before assault-at-arms was to be held.

It will be remembered that Cal O'Meara, another McGill boxer, lost to Methot on an extra round last season. Keller had the crowd with him all the way last night and fought one of the best bouts seen in this vicinity for some time.

It was announced yesterday that Don Keller expects to fight Jean Ratelle, the 175 pound provincial champion, towards the end of this month.

ATTENTION DRAWN TO ROOTERS' PLANS

- 1.—The Rooters Club will parade behind the band to every home game.
- 2.—The centre section of the bleachers will be reserved for the parading rooters.
- 3.—Admission to the centre section (rooters' section) will be by Rooters' Badge only.
- 4.—Rooters' Badges may be obtained at the gates of the Stadium on presentation of book of tickets.
- 5.—No Rooters' Badges will be issued to individual students until after the rooters' parade has entered the Stadium.
- 6.—Ticket No. 1 will admit non-paraders to any but the centre section.

POLOISTS FEATURE SNAPPY WORKOUT

Gibbons to Dive at Ottawa on Saturday

Things were certainly far more encouraging for McGill at the Knights of Columbus tank than they have been so far. It may have been the razzing given in yesterday's Daily, or it may have been the fact that the schedule was posted showing but two weeks to the first game. But whatever the cause there were experienced men and men new to the game practicing every brand of aquatic in all parts of the tank. The left hand side was taken up by three men at a time sprinting up and down while the odd punger tried to get his turn when the coast was clear, while there was a long waiting list at the diving board. Of these divers Mort Gibbons will travel to Ottawa this week end to represent the Red and in the Dominion Championships there.

The polo practice was divided into two halves: the old hands continued to develop their passing and flipping together with a little shooting, while Coach Harold Fisk was teaching the handling of the ball to a group of new men.

Among those outlining in their first appearance last night was Wendell Laidley, veteran of many a senior series. His skill in passing and shooting does not seem to have suffered at all during his short lay off. Newcomers to the game are shaping up well. Weingold, who at the beginning of the week was only a beginner can now put in some passable shots. Men such as Isenman and Felner now turn in a creditable performance and by taking a few more tips from Coach Fisk will develop into workable men.

Although the attendance at this practice was gratifying the absence of the many freshmen who have played polo before is still noticeable. However this was explained to a certain extent by the conflict of the swimming hours with some of the class periods. This will not affect the Friday practice and it is hoped that a full turnout will then be seen.

MCGILL PROFESSORS GO TO DETROIT

ROOTERS' PRACTICE AT STADIUM TODAY

Dave Munroe, Joins Casualty List With Infection

"SAINT" MAY PLAY

Little's Ankle is Improved—McTeer and Sharp in Uniform Again

Jack Little was a spectator at yesterday's work-out of the senior rugby squad. The red and white captain was unable to get into uniform due to his sprained ankle, but the injury has responded well to treatment and the swelling has receded. If all goes well it is expected that he will be in fit condition to start against Queen's on Saturday.

Ralph St. Germain has returned from the hospital after undergoing a slight operation for an infected foot. The doctors had to cut fairly deep into the sole of his foot in order to stop the poisoning, and, as a result, the backfield flash is suffering a great deal, but he may also be able to begin against the tricolor Saturday.

Another secret practice was held at the Stadium yesterday afternoon. The team went through a dummy scrimmage in great style. George McTeer and Lou Sharp were back in uniform but were kept out of the heavy work. Dave Munroe turned up at the field house sporting a bandaged head. He is under the weather with an infected forehead as the result of a scratch sustained when he blocked a kick in last Saturday's game. Munroe was snapping the ball as usual yesterday, although the infection bothered him a great deal.

The red team were put through a number of deceptive plays with despatch, and while the line men were busy perfecting themselves, the substitute backfield players were working out with Ken Tremaine, Doherty and Kritzweiser teamed well with the former R.M.C. captain, and should prove to be adequate relief men if St. Germain and Little are unable to line up.

This afternoon, Coach Shaughnessy has invited all the rooters to assemble at the Stadium at 4:30 and give the boys a little encouragement in the final stiff practice before the big game. Bill, the conscientious groundsman, who has exercised his authority to its fullest extent so far this week, and succeeded in keeping all except the press away from the stadium, has been ordered to relent today and will let all and sundry through the gates. Every student is expected to be on hand for the gigantic practice. The team is doing its best to pave the way to victory and a championship. The least rest of the college can do is to turn out for one afternoon and give the lads some encouragement.

Associate professor of operative dentistry and director of the dental clinic, Dr. George S. Cameron, professor of prosthetic dentistry; Dr. J. S. Dohar, associate professor of prosthetic dentistry, and Dr. H. A. Stevenson, lecturer in dental history, ethics and economics.

The teachers will return to attend the fall dental clinic held annually in Montreal. The convention which they are to attend will mark a gathering of some 5,000 dental experts who will meet to consider dental problems.

CHANCE TO WIN CASH PRIZE

Eaton's Offer $1,000 for Descriptive Essay

It is quite possible that, among the students at McGill, there are some men or women of great potential wealth that is, comparatively speaking. For while to some the prizes offered by Eaton's may seem incommensurate with the work involved, it is certain that to almost any collegian $250. or $500. seems only slightly less than the height of property. As a matter of fact, none of the ninety-odd other prizes are to be despised. The collegians, however, will have keen competition as letters are coming in from all quarters and some of them are really good.

All that is required is an opinion or description expressed in 200 words or less, of Birkdale Special Suits which "Eaton's" claim to be the acme of clothing value. Full details of the competition are available at the men's clothing department on the second floor.

McGILL WOMEN'S UNION MET

Relation With University Settlement Outlined

The relationship of the McGill Women's Union to the University Settlement was outlined to the new members yesterday by Mrs. Ira Mackay, the convener of the settlement committee, at a meeting of the Union held in Strathcona Hall.

A resolution was passed at this meeting which reads:—"That the McGill Women's Union take charge of an open day at the University Settlement the first week of November and that voluntary contributions of small needs for the settlement be received."

Mrs. E. R. Adair mentioned the fact that McGill students' attention has been called to the fact that the union wishes to be of assistance to any individual student who might desire help, and whose home is not in Montreal.

It was decided to change the name of "Staff team" to "Town and Gown Team."

Reports were also read by Mrs. Walter Stewart, convener of the entertainment committee, and by Mrs. A. S. Eve, on membership committee. Mrs. W. D. Woodhead read the minutes. Mrs. Gordon MacDougall was in the chair.

great Canadian Educational Institution.

The President then introduced Mr. A. K. Snelgrove who related his experience as geologist in the mining districts of Newfoundland during the past summer. The Empire Mining and Metallurgical Congress visited Newfoundland this year. In the company were some world famous engineers, and they seemed unanimously of the opinion that Newfoundland is on the eve of a great mineral development.

Before the meeting closed L. G. Gillard and W. H. Legrow were elected to fill vacancies on the Social Committee and J. G. Howlett was elected to the Executive as reporter.

Refreshments were served and the meeting broke up, with everybody firmly convinced that the Newfoundland Club was about to begin another successful year.
